

GAINS MADE ALONG DVINA SAYS BERLIN

ADVANCE OF GERMANS TOWARDS BALTIC PORT OF RIGA HAVE BEEN FURTHER suc-CESSFUL.

BALKANS IN TURMOIL

Roumania Expected to Declare War
at Any Moment—Mobilization of Neighboring States Stirs
Bulgaria.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Berlin, Sept. 16.—The German army advancing against the Russians
in the Dvina river region in the import struggle for the port of Riga, has been further successful, the war office announced today.

Russians Make Stand.

London, Sept. 16.—Coincident with Earl Kitchener's optimistic remarks
in the house of lords, concerning the position of the Russian army, they are showing an increasing disposition to resume the offensive at many points on eastern front. They are not only pressing their attacks against Austrians in Galicia, but for the most part are holding up the German rush in mid-Poland. The Russians also assert they have thrown back near Sviatskany, where the German cavalry cut the Petrograd
railroad between Dvinsk and Vlna.
The Germans still hold out at the bridge near Dvinsk, although the Russians apparently are holding their opponents in check in this region.

Prisoners Even.

Counting their captures in Galicia,
the Russians lately have been taking more prisoners than they have been losing. In England hopes are rising that Earl Kitchener does not make an exaggerated prediction when he declared Germany had shot her bolt,
but that his statement was based on facts. It is said here that Von Hindenburg's drive is losing its vigor.
The German "Gazette" is striving to overcome the difficulties of the marsh country, and the Austrians appear to be unable to regain the upper hand
in Galicia.

The Balkan Situation Has Not Reached a Settlement.

The British press
views Bulgaria's attitude with some anxiety. "Bulgarian aims," says the "Western Guardian," for the subject of increasingly anxious thought by the entente powers.

Call for Reserves.

Petrograd, Sept. 16.—An Imperial ukase has been issued today calling for the colors reserves of the territorial army. The senate is instructed to determine the ages and numbers of the reserves and the district from which they shall be called.

Capture Pinsk.

Berlin, Sept. 16.—The capture of the Russian city of Pinsk, about one hundred miles east of Brest Litovsk
was announced today at army headquarters.

Roumania Near War.

London, Sept. 16.—A Copenhagen
dispatch to the Telegraph Exchange agency says that Roumania has been permitted yesterday to publish sensational telegrams intimating Roumania's participation in the war may be expected at any minute.

The Massing of German and Austrian Troops on the Roumanian Frontier Has Resulted in the Balkan League to be Formed.

It is said that the Balkan league to be formed by Roumania,
Serbia and Greece, Bulgaria, Roumania and Greece, has been negotiations because of her agreement with Turkey by which she will obtain possession of territory along the Dodrecht railway.

Recent advances from Rome were to the effect that negotiations were under- way for the formation of a new Balkan league to be composed of Roumania, Serbia and Greece, Bulgaria,

Turk Banks Moving.

London, Sept. 16.—Advices from Constantinople, according to the Athens correspondent of the Exchange Telegraph company, are to the effect that all government financial institutions such as the Ottoman banks, are making preparations to move to the interior of Asia Minor. It has been learned from the same sources that because of the fear of an interruption
in the Turkish army, all Turkish banks will be placed in charge of Germans.

French War Appropriation.

London, Sept. 16.—A bill appropriating $1,240,000,000 for the expenses of France, during the last quarter of the year, was introduced in the French
chamber of deputies today, by Finance Minister Ribot.

France Already has advanced $130,000,000 to her allies, the minister an- nounced. He estimated the average monthly war expenses of Russia, based on the financial reports at $360,000,000, those of Germany nearly $500,000,000 and Great Britain in excess of that amount.

Rome, via Paris, Sept. 16.—Because of the concentration of Greek and Roumanian troops on the Bulgarian frontier, the Bulgarian foreign min- ister has instructed the Bulgarian consul at Athens and Bucharest to request immediate and definite ex- planation, according to a Sofia dis- patch to the Giornale D'Italia.

PROMINENT MILWAUKEE BREWER BROUGHT TO TRIAL

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Milwaukee, Wis., Sept. 16.—Charged with striking and robbing a fellow citizen across the face with a riding whip, Edward C. Uihlein, prominent member of the Milwaukee family of brewers, was today brought to trial before a jury in district court. The alleged assault occurred near Ravenna park.

Capitalists of East and West Confer on Anglo-French Loan

Noted bankers arriving at Morgan's library for conference with allied financial commission. James B. Forgan of Chicago (left) and George Baker of New York.

Bankers from practically all the great cities of the United States are taking part in the conferences in New York, between American financiers on the one hand, and the Anglo-French financial commission which is seeking a huge loan in this country, on the other. These pictures were taken outside J. P. Morgan's library, where several of the conferences have been held, and show two of the most prominent financiers leaving their automobiles.

North of Russia Immune From Horrible War Perils

Washington, Sept. 16.—Unlike the other belligerents, vulnerable in every part, Russia has unlimited reaches of territory where no wounds
of war could be inflicted, where no invaders would ever come, and where,
if they came, their coming would be to no purpose, as it could work no damage. Such a security from the perils of war is enjoyed by the north of Russia, by the wild, thinly peopled
regions of Archangel and Olenok, which are described as follows in the latest bulletin of the National Geographic Society:

"In the north of European Russia
stretches a land of endless forests,
of immense belts of moor wastes, and
of greivish tundra which blurs as far as the eye can reach into uncertain horizons. Here mighty, unfrequented rivers cut their ways to the northern waters, some drowsy and reed-cluttered and others swift and strong and cascade-broken. Here are innumerable pleasant, wooded lakes and huge inland seas, and throughout all of the royal reaches of this north are good hunting and wilderness.

"Archangel is the only city in this region whose name is known in the outside world, and the only place that has been able to achieve an individual distinction in the midst of the vastness, the desolation and the conglau-ing winters of Russia's north. There is much economic value in the north,
but the country has no valuable fur-bearing animals, the lower forests are rich in noble trees, the higher forests in pitch and tar, the tundras in reindeer herds, and great sturgeon are caught through the ice of the rivers, which produce large quantities of this delicate fish meat and caviar.

"The English established a trading factory near present Archangel, during the reign of Ivan the Terrible, and since their coming the region has been exploited by pioneers, by adventurous traders, trappers, hunters and fishermen, but the country has never passed the pioneer stage. The roads, for the most part, are barely marked trails, narrow, unlevelled ribbons through vast forests, indifferently-conveyed causeways, through swamps and marsh lands, and uncertain tracks through the northern tundra. Post stations are scattered over the government, far apart, where the little of Sovkova, and where types of conveyances are kept for the occasional trader, the occasional letter and the rare visitor. The villages are small and poor and forgetful of the modern world and all that it con-

BRITISH SUBMARINE IS REPORTED SUNK TO SEND CANADIANS CHRISTMAS SOCKS

Passengers and Crew Are Rescued
From Ship Which Goes Ashore
Off French Coast.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

London, Sept. 16.—The admiralty announced today that in all probability the British submarine E-7 had been sunk off the Dardanelles.

"The statement follows:—The submarine E-7, of Lieutenant Commander Archibald D. Cochran, was reported to have been sunk
three days ago, with five men and crew as prisoners. As no news has been received from this submarine since the fourth of September,
it must be presumed that this report
is correct."

Liners Aground.

Marseilles, France, Sept. 16.—The liner Euphrate, owned by the Messageries maritimes, has gone ashore on the island of Sovkova. Passengers and crew have been taken off by passenger steamers. It is feared the Eu-phrate will be a total loss.

BRITISH LOSE 17,608 IN WAR THUS FAR AT THE DARDANELLES

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
London, Sept. 16.—British casualties at the Dardanelles up to August 21, were 87,630. The number killed in that time was 17,608.

MAY GET AID OF OIL KINGS ON BIG LOAN

ROCKEFELLER AND STANDARD OIL MILLIONAIRES STILL HAVE MATTER UNDER CONSIDERATION.

DIFFER ON INTEREST

Anglo-French Commission Expect to Pay Five Per Cent, Which Is Below Americans' Figures.—
May Get Canadian
Backing.

New York, Sept. 16.—Standard oil
millionaires, including John D. Rockefeller, Jr., it was reported today, are considering the terms of the proposed billion dollar credit loan to Great Britain and France with a view to participation.

Members of the Anglo-French financial commission and American bankers working for the success of the proposed billion dollar credit loan to Great Britain and France have somewhat different ideas. It became known today, as to some of the terms governing the loan, chief of which is reported to be the rate of interest.

The commission is reported to believe the maximum rate of interest
should be five per cent.

Many American bankers believe the maximum should yield at least five and one-half per cent, while there is some talk of requiring six per cent.
Members of the commission seemed well satisfied today with the progress made thus far. Millions in pledges, it is reported, have already been secured, and more pledges were tentatively assured. Negotiations, it was said, had reached the stage where an authoritative statement from the commission would be issued soon, perhaps tonight.

Differ Over Interest.

The commission is reported to believe the maximum rate of interest
should be five per cent.

May Get Canadian Backing.

St. Paul, Sept. 16.—It was rumored in local financial circles this afternoon that a proposition would be made to the Anglo-French financial commission in New York by which it is hoped to effect the proposed billion dollar loan through the aid of Canadian securities. Local financiers who discussed this gossip said exact details of the plan had not been divulged, but declared it possible the loan, should it made, would depend upon Canadian backing for the completion.

FRENCH AIRMEN USE NEW FLYING TACTICS

Fly in Flocks Instead of Singly, Forcing Germans to Employ Like Methods.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Budapest, Sept. 16.—Some details of the mode of operations of the French aviators in the air are given in a letter from a Hungarian aviator serving with the German army in France.

"The French airmen," he writes,
"now fly usually in flocks, in squadrons of considerable strength, both for reconnoitering purposes and for attacking our aviators who are on reconnoitering duty. At the French possess a huge number of machines and back-
our way systematically, we have had to follow their example. Some pitched battles between comparatively large flocks of aeroplanes are thus possible,
the possibilities of the immediate future."

When the French desire to prevent us from seeing their manoeuvres, a dozen aeroplanes ascend to a height of 6,000 feet and patrol our line. An equal number rise to 9,000 and fly
along our front, taking the opposite direction from the first group. Should one of our machines attempt to pass through the meshes of this net, the two French aviators who happen to be nearby attack it simultaneously, one from above and the other from below.
If that is not sufficient, two or more others fly to their assistance.

The French adopt similar methods
when they board our aviation centers, railway stations and camps. The French air service is organized into what they call squadrons, which is thoroughly practical in maneuvering together like a fleet at sea. In an attack on a German land position, the squadrons consist of a very powerful machine which leads the way, a few other scouts to see that the right direction is maintained, and then the bomb-carrying machines. The squad is handled very skillfully.

POOR FRESHIE GETS WET AT LAWRENCE

Sophomores Capture Class President and Duck All Freshmen at Appleton Today.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Appleton, Wis., Sept. 16.—With the newly elected president of freshmen,
Theodore Sloat of Antigo, in the hands of the sophomores, the freshmen at Lawrence went home in defeat last night after a long and bitter struggle in the fountain in Jones Park. Harry Rice, former center on the Fond du Lac basketball team, was injured
when he was thrown into the fountain, his back striking the concrete edge.

One hundred new students stripped for a fight without coats on hats and each with his forehead marked with red paint as identification paraded the streets and then assembled on the campus guarding the stone which they had painted with their class colors. Harry Peak of Berlin, acting as a sophomore spy, was the first to go into the fountain in the city park.
Several other students were thrown into the river during the afternoon.
A fire hose was attached to a hydrant
and a stream turned on the freshmen,
but the freshmen captured the hose.
Later the sophomores charged the freshmen and after a long battle the
"18 had the smaller number they used more strategy and succeeded in ducking all freshmen, who dispersed after their president was captured. He was kept under guard all night and it is said will appear tonight with his hair
clipped through the center."

FINANCIER TAKES POISON TABLETS; WAITING RESULTS

Newman Erb's Condition Is Thus Far Favorable.—Similar to Other Cases.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

New York, Sept. 16.—Newman Erb, wealthy financier and railroad organizer, who swallowed two poison tablets by mistake, is today confined at his summer home at Deal, New Jersey, calmly awaiting the outcome of the efforts being made by three specialists to save his life. He spent a comfortable night, is free from pain and entirely conscious. The physicians hope that the prompt rejection of the poison by the stomach and the first aid rendered by Mr. Erb's valet, prevented all but a small amount of poison
from entering the financier's system.
However, they have told Mr. Erb and his family that if a considerable quantity of the poison entered it will be two and possibly four or five days before any serious symptoms become apparent.

In the meantime every possible effort is being made to counteract the effects of any poison that may be in his system. The operation of scraping the kidneys, which has been successful in similar cases of poisoning, will not be resorted to in his case, it was said, on account of Mr. Erb's age, which is sixty-five years. Mr. Erb's family explained how he came to take poison. He was returning to Deal from New York, and in his traveling bag he carried a bottle of headache tablets and another containing poison tablets, which he used for making a wash for an infection.

Mr. Erb had a headache when he boarded the train and took two tablets
from one of the bottles. A short time later he was taken ill. Because of his prominence Mr. Erb's case is attracting much attention. It recalls the remarkable fight made in behalf of E.
Sanders Walker, a young banker
Macon, Georgia, who suffered a similar mishap.

Walker took a single tablet on May 14, 1913, but despite the efforts of doctors and his own cheerful help in the fight, he died eight days later.
Since then there have been several such cases, some of which had proved fatal, while in one case at least a cure
was effected.

FEARS PANIC MAY FOLLOW CREDIT LOAN

SENATOR J. HAM. LEWIS SENDS LETTER OF PROTEST TO SECRETARY M'ADOO.

WOULD CRIPPLE NATION

Illinois Senator Believes Drain on Country's Financial Resources
Would Venge Upon a Calamity.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Chicago, Sept. 16.—Senator J. Hamilton Lewis today made public a letter protesting against the proposed billion dollar war loan which he has sent to Secretary of the Treasury, McAdoo, and the federal reserve board. Senator Lewis said his purpose in making the letter public was so that the public could take council of the bankers "looking to a proper guardianship of money of the people."

Would Invite Panic.

The loan he said, would invite repetition of panics of 1873 and 1893.
In course of his letter the senator
said:

"The amount demanded by financiers of Europe is $1,000,000,000. The statement from the official bankers of the government is that an amount of usable money in America for Americans in excess of reserve and money already obligated is $2,000,000, 000.

"It will be seen that if the billion sought goes to the foreign bankers,
one half of all available cash for America is taken from the American people. This is a time when the American government have no other source in the world to resort to in the event of any emergency breaking upon the United States."

"This amount of money leaving us
means:

$100,000,000 taken from ten of our commercial centers.
$100,000,000 taken from one thousand of our agricultural and manufacturing centers.

All this at a time when the revenue America shows a deficit by the European war, cutting off imports and necessitating the borrowing by America from itself, of the increasing of taxes on the citizens if there be efficiency of money in America to meet an American government loan."

No Security Given.

"The effect of this foreign loan would be to take one billion dollars
from our people of their own money and lend it to nations who will have in its place securities of two or three countries, issued upon a credit already taxed beyond its reserve, and we will have a vast quantity of money
to collect the collateral."

"This condition would bring on a crisis in this country as was brought on in 1873 and in 1893, when panics were brought on America by sending our money out of the country to bolster the falling fortunes of Europe.
Remember, we never recovered
that money. We got into receivership hands and bankruptcy as collateral or payment for those lost millions."

U. S. Needs Own Capital.

"Our business men and farmers need the available money now in America to initiate and sustain their enterprises, give employment to labor and increase commerce.

"Now, if it be said our people do not need the money at home, and that it should be lent abroad, then I suggest that we lend it to South America. But we would have a chance to build up and and we would get a collateral and security resting in the empires of valuable land. This is the same form of collateral we were able to give Europe, and upon which we obtain loans in the days of our need."

CAPTURE UP-STATE DEPOT HOLD-UP MAN

Chippewa Falls Depot Agent Robbed
of $103 and $5,000 in Pay Checks Last Night.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Chippewa Falls, Wis., Sept. 16.—
Shortly after midnight, a freight train, marked man held up Kenneth Beals, night ticket agent of the Soo Line, at the depot at the point of a revolver, forced him to open the safe, and took $108 in cash and $5,000 in employment pay checks. Thinking Beals, the robber disappeared. At three a. m.
he was arrested in a lunch car at Eau Claire, having escaped from a freight train. All the money and checks were found on him. The prisoner, who is 31 years old, refused to give his name.
He said he was formerly a traveling salesman of Fort Dodge, Kan. He was broke, he said, and wanted money.
Just prior to robbing the depot, he tried to hold up Walter Violet, night
bartender at the Riverside hotel.
Violet grabbed him and threw him
out, but could not wrest his gun away.
The robber went to the depot across the street and in five minutes accomplished the hold-up and escaped.

The Micawbers

Like Dicken's quaint character, too many business men are prone to sit around and
"wait for something to turn up."

And when it does it not infrequently has the well-dressed semblance of bankruptcy proceedings.

Live business men make things turn up.

They assert their right to thrive, and do.

They recognize the value of newspaper advertising.

They employ it as an effective weapon and grow and prosper.

NEW TRAFFIC LAWS ARE BEING FAVORED

Proposed Traffic Ordinance is Not Cumbersome and Unwieldy as Was Old Measure.

Several amendments are being suggested to the proposed ordinance submitted by City Attorney W. H. Dougherty to the city commission, and it is expected the new city legislation will be passed before the month of October. The new ordinance should be welcomed by the automobile owners. While the provisions are rigid and strict they are not so cumbersome but that every driver should obey the regulations. If passed the proposed ordinance will repeal Section 1 with all the subsections of the present ordinance, Chapter six.

The provisions of the new ordinance provide that no person under the age of sixteen years, unless accompanied by parent, guardian or other adult person, and no intoxicated person shall operate, ride or drive any motor vehicle on any public streets of Janesville.

No person shall operate or drive any motor vehicle or motorcycle in a reckless manner or at a speed greater than is reasonable and proper, having regard to the width, traffic and use of the street and the general nature of the road or so as to endanger the property, life or limb of any person.

No person shall operate or drive any motor vehicle or motorcycle on any street at a speed exceeding fifteen miles per hour. No person shall operate or drive a motor vehicle past any school grounds at a speed exceeding eight miles per hour.

In turning corners, in going around curves, at sharp declines at intersections of any street or road, and when from any cause the view in the direction in which the car or vehicle is proceeding shall be obstructed, the speed shall be reduced to a rate that will tend to avoid danger of accident.

The driver shall observe the right of way of the road by passing to the right of vehicles and by passing to the left of all vehicles overtaken on the highway, and at all times giving way to a vehicle which has the right of way.

At street intersections the driver or operator of any vehicle shall have the right of way over the driver of any other vehicle approaching him on such cross street from the left, excepting at times when a police officer shall be in actual charge of the regulation of traffic at the intersection. Drivers are prohibited from passing a street car if it is actually taking on or discharging passengers.

It is unlawful under the new ordinance to operate any automobile or motorcycle without a sufficient muffler, modern and improved, to prevent noise or to operate a vehicle with the muffler open.

Drivers shall at intersections keep to the right of the center of the street corner when turning to the right and on passing on to the right of the center of the intersection when turning to the left.

No automobile, motorcycle or other similar motor vehicle shall be left standing unattended on any street or highway within the city unless the engine be stopped.

With relation to the lights all motor cars shall have lights displayed from thirty minutes after sunset until sunrise, and at all times when the driver can be seen at a distance of at least one lamp is demanded on the front of the vehicle and at least one tail light, which must be plainly visible.

It is unlawful under the proposed ordinance, to drive a motor vehicle at a rate of speed that the vehicle cannot be brought to a complete stop within the distance ahead that the driver can see with the aid of the lights, see an object the size of a person in vehicles shall be provided with efficient brakes and it shall be unlawful for any person to drive a vehicle which shall not produce a signal device sufficiently loud to serve as an adequate warning of danger. It is unnecessary noise or to make any device and except on vehicles in charge of the police, fire department or ambulance, the siren signal is prohibited.

DEMOCRATIC RANKS ARE STILL DIVIDED

County Democratic Chairman Kalve- lague and Associates Recent Ad- vances From Aylward Sources.

That the line of cleavage is still sharply drawn between the circles of Wisconsin, and that it will take more than a harmony meeting to amalgamate the two factions of the party before the next primary election, are facts indicated in a statement issued by A. Gardner Kalvelage, chairman of the democratic party organization in Rock county. Kalvelage has his party associates recent advances recently made as they believe from Aylward sources, which they interpret as an effort to use the regular party organization as a cat's paw for the Aylward second.

The Aylward crowd, they advance came through the Milwaukee Journal, a progressive democratic newspaper, which made several proposals and asked for a list of the democratic voters of Rock county. Mr. Kalvelage in his statement says:

That Rock county democrats are watching every movement in democratic politics with anticipation. The next primary campaign is manifest by a recent consultation between several men influential in party councils in which attention was called to the significance of a proposal advanced by the Aylward crowd, which would place no trust in the Aylward crowd and believe that for the sake of party welfare and party solidarity they should not be allowed to continue their plotting.

The proposal is made that the delegates to the next national convention be divided equally between the regular democrats and the Aylward people. Rock county democrats saw that this was a trap to catch the regular party men unawares and thus obtain a favorable stand with the national party in the coming year.

They have recently lost by the capture of the state organization by the better and conservative element of the party of which Judge Karel is the head. The fact that the Aylward crowd never admitted party harmony in the distribution of patronage and so are not sincere now in their plans for harmony.

Local democrats have further shown their determination not to be taken in and made cats' paws for a faction which will knife them on the first occasion.

Mr. Kalvelage, in his reply to the Journal, takes as a regular democratic its faithfulness in past councils, citing especially the campaign of 1914. Quoting from Mr. Kalvelage's letter on this point, it says:

"We have a right to forecast your future attitude by your position in the campaign of 1914. When five hundred democrats, who have been the life of the party in the state, and have contributed the campaign money, and people columns of ridicule of the affair and insulting caricatures of many democrats who participated. In the hands of the Aylward crowd, the endorsement as the choice of the party, a few party exploiters who met behind closed doors in the Plankinton and framed a state which they announced to the public as regular democrats. The primary campaign, the Journal imputed abused Judge Karel and misrepresented all his acts and utterances and endeavored by misleading means to make the choice of the party, against the choice of the convention. In the fall campaign when all true democrats should be supporting the regular nominees the Journal re- versed its position and here it threw its active support to an independent republican candidate. Its whole course has been to intensify factional differences and to cause a party schism."

ENROLLMENT AT HIGH SCHOOL REACHES 476

Assembly Room Originally Built to Accommodate 350 Now Seats 125 More—Eight Double Rows.

When the Janesville high school was built in 1895 it was planned that never would more be added. At 250 students enrolled in any one year. With that idea in view, the assembly room was erected to accommodate 350 students. The enrollment at that time was about 200. The total enrollment at the school today is 476, with bright indications that the five hundred mark will be reached before the year ends. This increased enrollment presents a problem to high school authorities on how to accommodate the students so that the talk of erecting a new addition to the school building is circulated among the board members. At present, eight double rows are taking care of the additional number of students, in addition to the regular number of single rows.

RECOVER THE BODY OF FLOOD VICTIM

Receding Water of Sugar River Gives Up Body of Henry Geiger, Belleville Farmer.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE]
Monroe, Wis., Sept. 16.—The receding waters of Sugar river, following the flood, gave up the body of Henry Geiger, the young Belleville farmer, who met death some time about six o'clock Monday morning. He was attempting to ford the rapidly rising river to give aid to some of his cattle which were in danger, when he met his death.

The body was found near to the bridge which the young man was used to crossing and which it is supposed he headed his horse for on the fatal morning. It is believed that he missed the bridge and landed on the side of the structure and he was thrown off. That he put up a brave fight against the swirling waters is evident, for the body was discolored and one hand was clasped a mass of hair which had been torn from the mane of the horse he was riding.

M'GOVERN REPORTED IN RACE FOR TOGA

Former Governor Will Oppose La Follette for Republican Nomination—May Mean Three Cornered Fight.

Milwaukee, Sept. 16.—Former Governor Francis E. McGovern is contemplating a candidacy for the republican nomination for the United States senate, and his government friends are probably making the conference of the McGovern men the coming week in Milwaukee.

The former governor will not admit that he has definitely decided upon his political plans, and has said that it is too early as yet to make any formal announcement. During the past week, however, there have been a number of quiet talks on the part of McGovern men, and during these conversations the former governor is said to have shown indications that he is likely to be a candidate for the United States senate again.

Hope for McGovern Men.
The trend of talk among close McGovern men indicates that the fact very plainly, and all the conversations of the McGovern people seem to indicate that their hope is that Governor Philipp will be a candidate for another term, and that if he is not, they will leave him free for a contest between former Governor McGovern and Senator Robert M. La Follette for the republican senatorial nomination.

The senatorial talk in connection with the name of former Governor McGovern shows plainly that the overtures which have been made by McGovern men for some kind of a party reconciliation have not been accepted, and that the McGovern men are now fully aware that they must face a contest with Senator La Follette if they are to remain a political factor in Wisconsin.

Say Philipp May Run.
The McGovern people do not seem to think that the name of Philip McGovern, of Wisconsin, will be a candidate for the republican nomination for the United States senate, and say that, while they know there is at the present time no question of their belief in the end Governor Philipp will decide to be a candidate for another term as governor.

In this idea, the McGovern people may be reckoning without their own well posted friends of Governor Philipp seem to think there is no question that before the fall is over, possibly as a result of the conference of the Philipp men here this week, the governor will enter the field as a candidate against Senator La Follette.

Philipp Greets Friends.
Governor Philipp has been meeting his friends quite informally but unofficially, and among campaign questions have been discussed in the conferences. Among the administration leaders in the city are Senators Burke, Cunningham, Stevens, Perry and Bray. Speaker of the Assembly, Wm. H. H. Aschman, Kubast, Ellington and Everett. There was some talk Wednesday that Assemblyman Ellington might soon announce candidacy for secretary of state. The governor will remain in the city all day Wednesday but leaves for Stanley Wednesday night.

Among the La Follette leaders in the city are Senators Monk and Huber and Assemblymen Ballard and Mortensen. Lieutenant Governor Dittmar also arrived Wednesday morning and Senator Boshard is expected.

TWO CHICAGO NINES BEAT BOSTON CLUBS

New Cub Pitcher Holds Braves and Schulte Hits Homer.—Red Faber Stops Red Sox.

Chicago, Sept. 15.—The season's activities between the Boston Braves and the Chicago Cubs ended yesterday with the pitching of Douglas, who of Brooklyn, for the Cubs, and a home run slam by Wilfrid Schulte defeated the Braves 1 to 0 and pushed them into third place, five full games behind the Cubs. Besides the Cubs-Braves combat, which was decidedly fiery, Umpire Byron and Smith, third baseman for the Braves, engaged in a fist fight at the end of the game, in which Smith came off second best.

Both Tyler, pitching for the Braves, and Douglas were going great guns during the game, and Douglas was standing the Braves on end. In the seventh Schulte "bunted" one to the left and cinched the game. The Braves only got three hits off Douglas and fanned ten men.

Brooklyn started a three game series with the Cubs today and Larry Cheney will do the hurling. In twenty-two games this summer the Cubs have an even break with the world's champions.

Red Faber Wins. Boston, Mass., Sept. 15.—Yesterday the Chicago Sox checked the Red Sox and their seven straight victories when Red Faber went back to the slab and obtained sweet revenge over the Boston aggregation. The Sox won 1 to 1. Faber held the Sox to a single and Speaker, which was manufactured into a run. Three men walked, seven fanned and Speaker was the only man to get to second.

Gregg, pitching for the Red Sox, was easy for the Sox, and in the fourth Collins tripled and scored when Ed Collins tapped one to the pitcher. Two runs in the sixth on Murphy's bunt and the singles by the Collins twins. The White Sox play at New York today. The Chicago club is seven games behind Boston.

PHILLIES NOW FOUR GAMES AHEAD WHEN PIRATES WIN 1 TO 0

Pittsburgh, Sept. 15.—Pittsburgh beat out Philadelphia today, the score 1 to 0. Kanteleher kept the hits scattered and won his own game in the eighth. In the ninth the Sox, who Gibson had singled and gone to second on Cravath's error. A fast single play with the bases full in the half of the eighth stopped was. Cravath caught Luderus' bunt and stepped on the bag, doubling up Cravath.

MIKE GIBBONS DECLARES HE WILL RETIRE FROM RING IN ANOTHER YEAR

St. Paul, Minn., Sept. 15.—Michael Gibbons, especially well up to the mark, today announced that he will retire from the boxing game in about three months, after a victory at Brighton Beach, coupled with others of the same caliber, have run Mike's bank account into very comfortable figures, and he is willing to retire with his gloves for the last time, he says.

Gibbons later announced that following his retirement he would punch the bugs off potato vines on his farm near Osakis, Minn.

ILLINOIS SEES ANOTHER CHAMPIONSHIP FOR ELEVEN

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE) Urbana, Ill., Sept. 15.—Prospects for another championship football team at Illinois were never brighter. Practically all the old men will be back, including Pogue, McCumber, Clark, quarter; Squires and Wiegman, ends; Watson (captain) and Pett, guard, and Vathyrbridge, halfback. The team is practically assured of that position on this year's team. Phipps, who weighs 196 pounds, is now here. It seems wonderfully fast for a man of his weight. Indications are that he will make one of the guard positions this season.

Each Zupke arrived here yesterday from his vacation trip to Michigan. Dr. Gilmsted, trainer, is back on the job getting things in readiness for this season's grind. Zupke will not report on the field until the third date for first practice Sept. 20, but the squad will be here in full number next week and no doubt will report through formations and other preliminary work.

COACH BILL JUNEAU WORKING WITH CANDIDATES

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE) Madison, Wis., Sept. 15.—Coach Bill Juneau today put about thirty husky candidates for the varsity football team of 1915 through a physical examination and conferred with them regarding classes and programs of work that would allow plenty of time for practice. There are about ninety candidates for the team, but of this number fully 25 are ineligible and ten of the most promising are behind in a scholastic way.

Frank Baker, the ex-Athletic star batsman and third baseman, who has played all season with the Upland team of the Delaware County league, a semi-professional organization outside of Philadelphia, won the pennant for his club with a home run drive a few days ago. Baker is the leading batsman of the league.

TO EMPLOY REFORMATORY PRISONERS ON HIGHWAYS

From twenty-five to fifty boys from the reformatory will be placed at work soon on a strip of road to be constructed between Green Bay and Deperre.

DIRECTUM I SETS NEW WORLD'S RECORD MARK AT SYRACUSE, NEW YORK

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE) Syracuse, N. Y., Sept. 15.—Directum I, Champion pacing stallion, established a new world's record of 1:56 1/4 for a mile paced without a wind shield at the New York state fair Wednesday afternoon. In doing he lowered his own record of 1:58.

Another world's record fell when Captain Dan Shaw of Cleveland drove Peter Mc in 0:04 1/4, a new amateur mark for a mile race.

In addition to the breaking of two world records, the world's champion four year old trotter, Peter Volo, 2:02, also driven by Thomas Murphy, equaled his own record, negotiating the distance in 2:02 flat.

Directum I got away to a splendid start in his phenomenal mile. Paced by runner, he was the first to reach the half mile mark in 0:58 1/2.

Captain Shaw, the oldest driver in America, sent Peter Mc away under perfect motion and the slightest semblance of a break marred this performance.

Peter Volo's record wrecking feat was less spectacular than that of Directum I or Peter Mc. Reaching the half way mark in 1:04 1/4, the big brown trotter was forced to go at a two minute clip for the remainder of the distance to equal the mark.

THE GREAT AWAKENER.

Lloyd-George has fairly earned and richly deserves the title of the "Great Awakener." If Great Britain is roused to a realization of the fact that she must put forth every effort and even put aside a few traditions if she is to triumph in the present war, it will be due in no small measure to the clarion calls of the minister of munitions.

He doesn't mince things in the least. He lays no healing unction to British self-conceit. He doesn't utter a syllable in support of the ancient doctrine that the British Empire is bound somehow to muddle through. On the contrary, he holds bluntly up before the country the possibility of a disastrous defeat—the destruction of that is dear to the British heart if the British patriotism does not rise to the occasion.

Whatever others may think about what Great Britain has already done in the present war, the little Welshman does not think she has done enough. He pays a tribute to France in the preface of a volume of his speeches just published and says that that heroic nation cannot be expected to bear much more of the burden. And what he thinks of the part Russia has played is sufficiently set forth in the statement that "for over twelve months, despite deficiencies in equipment, Russia has absorbed the energies of half of the German and four-fifths of the Austrian forces."

The great Britain must bear the weight that has fallen from the Russian shoulders as a result of the retreat of the Russian forces. She must arm, manufacture, enlist, "fight as never before or face the chances of defeat." Thus frankly does the "Great Awakener" speak and on this theory does he work.

The Chicago Herald thus discusses the rousing appeal recently made by Lloyd-George to his countrymen. The situation in relation to the Russian three thousand miles away has long been difficult to understand. The press censorship has been so severe that all war news has been suppressed, until the great opportunity to awaken patriotism and inspire loyalty has passed.

There was a time when the heart of conservative England might have been roused, but the great war has now become a frightful tragedy, and it is perfectly natural that men should be slow to face it.

This country had a similar experience during the last two years of the war of the rebellion. Patriotism became a secondary consideration, and when conscription finally came, every man who could hired a substitute.

The appeal of Lloyd-George may have some effect, but England has waited too long.

FOR REVENUE ONLY.

The world's war has so overshadowed all other topics that but little thought has been given to conditions at home, but expenses have been piling up and the fact is now disclosed that our government is running behind to the tune of $450,000 a day, which means a yearly deficit of $170,000,000.

This, in spite of the fact that a war tax has been imposed, as well as income tax, and it all goes to show that the democratic party is incompetent and inefficient.

The reduction of the tariff has not only crippled American industries, but has been the direct cause of a heavy loss in revenue. On sugar alone the loss is $54,000,000, and no one has been benefited. Sugar is costing more today than it did before the tariff was reduced.

This is only one of the evils resulting, so far as sugar is concerned. Out of the seventy American beet sugar factories in operation two years ago, seventeen were closed last year, and the few that remained are now being run at a loss.

It is idle to claim that the war has had a depressing influence on the business of this country. Our exports are the heaviest in the history of the nation, and will continue to increase as time advances. When the war is over, the trade in munitions will be succeeded by foodstuffs and machinery to help out the depleted nations.

The war at home on our industries is the war that has played havoc with us, and brings us today to face a deficit which has no right to exist, and the tariff has had much to do with it.

The chain of circumstances which made Mr. Wilson president, and the wisdom which he has displayed in dealing with the nations at war, has caused his party to drop out of sight. The president is the central figure, but back of him is the same old party, his cabinet, and many of his advisors, are below the average in point of ability, and the whole outfit is committed to the free trade fallacy. The war is so all-absorbing that the democratic party enjoys the advantage of being under cover, but the party is still there and will be very much in evidence when occasion demands.

The sentiment concerning President Wilson is a compliment to the man who has had so much to do in guiding the ship of state through troubled seas, which have no parallel in history. He has done well, but no better than many leaders would have done under the same circumstances. The nation would have been safe with Taft or Root, or a score of other well known statesmen.

Several newspapers speak of the raising of the F-4 as a remarkable achievement in naval engineering. Jesso! But the South Bend Tribune thinks a more remarkable achievement would have been the taking of steps to prevent its sinking. Says the Tribune: "The announcement that the ill-fated crew of the F-4 came to their deaths through chlorine gas generated from sea water seeping into storage batteries of the submarine is information that at the time the emergency charge was made conditions in regard to the American undersea boats were not what Secretary Daniels claimed them to be. Judging by his more recent activities, the secretary himself has come to a realization of that fact." Too late, however, so far as the victims are concerned, to do more than give them burial with full honors.

The English and French financiers now in this country attempting to negotiate a loan of one billion dollars, seem surprised that American bankers should hesitate to furnish the money without security other than government bonds. The credit of England has never been questioned and her great wealth has long been the envy of the world, but no nation, however strong, can indefinitely stand the strain of the world's war. A billion dollars is but a drop in the bucket when fifty millions is going into the nether every day. This money is lost for all time, and the nations will be a long time in recovering.

The building of roads, in a season when it rains half the time, is a discouraging proposition, and it is not surprising that many highways are impassable. The automobile has created a demand for good roads, which never before existed, and the farmer who owns a car is no longer a critic. He shares a double benefit, for the good road adds to the value of the farm and contributes to the pleasure of driving. The time will come when every country road will be a boulevard.

In the year ended June 30, last, the Northern Pacific railroad lost over $7,277,000 in gross revenue, but cut expenses almost $9,000,000. That saving in expenditures will long be remembered by the half-fed and poorly clad families of the men in the northwest who lost their jobs. Like war, an industrial depression brings suffering not only to the men but to their dependent women and children.

The Daily Novelette

Before the Slaughter.

Percy and Harold stopped suddenly in front of the shirt counter, behind which big Bill Bisskins was yawning and wishing for Sunday.

"Well," said Percy, "I've just bought a new shirt."

"What I can do for you?" yawned Bill Bisskins.

"We should like to inspect those shirts on the top shelf, please if you don't mind," said Percy.

"Some just like 'em on this top shelf," said Bill, who loathed high reaching.

"The top, we insist," said Harold.

So Bill, with a tremendous stretch, reached up and managed to lift down seven boxes.

"Thanks you, as they moved away," said Percy, "you've saved my shirt."

"You don't apprehend," explained Percy, "I bet Harold that you couldn't reach to the top shelf without a ladder, and he bet me a box of ladders to an inferior hankerkerchief that you could. And we just wanted to ascertain."

"The end came later."

There is a certain joy about wearing your first derby that doesn't come at any time in life.

The real patriot is the fellow who thinks that his one vote is going to decide the presidential election.

It is getting so the tailors kin make clothes that look almost as stylish as the ready-made that a feller sees in the fashion plates.

A feller kin git almost anything at a drug store nowadays exceptin' peep-haps drugs.

There ain't no bore like the feller who had money once and only once.

There ain't nothing in this world more cheerin' than an undertaker's ad in the weekly paper.

An Ultra Modern Fable.

A certain beautiful dame was wooed by two young men, one of whom had inherited a million dollars, while the other had nothing beyond the salary of $10 a week. She loved the poor young man, but she said she could not think of marrying him until he could support her in the style to which she had determined to become accustomed.

So the poor man decided to accumulate a million. It was hard work, and it took him nearly six months to do it, but he did.

When he went to lay his fortune and his heart at the feet of the fair one, he found she had grown tired of waiting, and had married the other suitor—the one who had inherited his million from a rich but not too honest father.

Nothing daunted our brave hero immediately went out and accumulated another million.

Deeply touched by this proof of his undying devotion, the lady took the train for Reno and got divorced from her husband, whose million was nearly gone, anyhow. Then she came back and married her first love, and they lived happily ever after.

Moral: Modern conveniences are great stuff.

Contentment.

It won't make your disposition sweet to go and live on a high-toned street. You kin travel through Europe and Asia, too.

But it won't take the discontent from you. You kin change your residence every day.

But you'll never find happiness that way. I know a man in a vine-clad cot, nine miles from nowhere, but he has a fund of happiness laid in store.

And he's lived there thirty-five years or more.

I know another so dog-gone rich that he's got mobiles and yachts and such.

He has traveled as far as he can git, but he hasn't found his contentment.

The more you travel the more you'll find. That happiness is just a state of mind.

To find the thing you need never start. Unless you have got it in your own heart.

SURPRISING INFORMATION ON FOREIGN COMMERCE IS GIVEN ABOUT SPAIN

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

Madrid, Sept. 16. — The Monthly Statistical Review of the Foreign Commerce of Spain, a government publication, has just been issued, and is full of surprising information. It shows the most extraordinary ups and downs in Spain's foreign trade for this year.

As compared with the period just preceding the war, generally speaking, the figures show a considerable diminution in imports and a very material increase in exports during the first six months of 1915.

From January to June, 1915, Spain imported to the value of $114,842,000 (taking the peseta at its normal value of $1.93) while in the same period of this year the imports totaled $109,817,000—a drop of $4,825,000 for the half year.

On the other hand, the exports for the first half year of 1915 were only $91,239,000, while this year the figure reached $121,204,000, a gain of $29,915,000, constituting an influx of $11,337,000 into the pockets of the Spaniards.

However favorable this may be for Spain, the Spanish population, it is nevertheless of the moving causes of the present financial crisis in the government of the country, because it has worked a decrease in the receipts of the government of $7,334,000, which is forced to make up with more direct forms of taxing an already over-taxed people.

The decrease of imports does not, however, include certain raw materials, such as cotton and wool. The manufacture of cotton and woolen goods are two of the most important industries in Spain. Before the war there were about 70,000 cotton and about 2,000 woolen looms in Catalonia.

Under the stimulus of the war, however, in the first six months of this year, $2,399,000 of raw cotton and $1,447,500 of unwashed wool went into the country from abroad.

POLES ARE BITTER AGAINST RUSSIANS FOR THEIR FAILURE

Loss of Warsaw and the Destruction of Cities by Soldiers Before Russians Is Resented by Poland.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

Stockholm, Sweden, Sept. 14.—Whatever military strategists may decide is the actual importance of the Russian loss of western Poland and the fall of Warsaw, by the Poles themselves it is regarded as nothing but the bitterest of tragedies.

The trouble with the Poles is that they are suffering and the complete devastation of their country, still clung to the promise that the Russian had held out to them at the beginning of the war. But with the gradual encroachment of the German armies, this assurance has wavered.

Not so much because they doubted Russia's good faith as because they questioned her ability to enforce the Grand Duke's proclamation. With the loss of the Polish capital it may be said that this view of the situation alone lifted Russian Poland out of absolute despair, has expired.

An Associated Press correspondent talked with representative Poles of all classes from the aristocracy to the peasantry, as they fled from Warsaw to interior points in Russia. The uppermost feeling was one of ill-concealed resentment against the Russians.

Recent insults.

In the recent retreat from the region around Warsaw, the Russian army, where the resources of the city had been converted to German use, decided upon a policy of destroying all property about whose use the Germans were in the slightest question.

It was hardly to be expected that the Poles, homeless, pauperized, and without any idea of where or how they were going to live, would preserve a dignified silence in the face of the Russian army. Explanations regarding "strategic necessity" failed to impress men who had just seen their homes razed by the Russian army and the death of Poland proclaimed the very phrasing of which they considered an insult.

Polish eyes and men must immediately leave the regions along the front for points in the interior.

These wretched persons said that the Russian soldiers in their zealous execution of the orders they had received, had left nothing behind but except a blackened and scarred landscape whose very soil was ruined.

In view of the present geographical position of Poland, and the state of Polish feeling, the continuance of the session of the Russian-Polish commission appointed by the emperor to consider the question of Polish independence, the qualities of tragedy and farce almost equally combined, the commission has almost apparently come to a deadlock, since the kind of independence which Poland wants and the kind which Russia seems to offer are if not directly opposed, at least so remote from each other as to have little in common.

Polish Position.

I can see little hope of an agreement between the Russian and Polish members of the commission, said Roman Dmowski, the Polish chairman of the commission and former leader of the national democratic party of Poland, in a statement to the Associated Press.

"I have been asked by the Russian emperor to give my views regarding the Polish government of the future, and I would be inclined, as an unrepresentative of my country, if I were asked to give my views regarding the future of the commission, if a compromise is necessary, it is certainly not my duty at the present time to suggest it."

Poland will never be satisfied without a proper degree of independence. Asked to make his idea of a proper degree of independence, Mr. Dmowski said:

"I mean a Polish legislature with both a wholly Polish, complete financial independence, and the end of Russian officialdom in Poland. This is a concession Russia will never care to make, for Poland has been a most inviting garden for exploitation by Russian officials."

"It is the presence of Russian administrative officials which we find particularly intolerable. Poland knows that she can never realize her ideals as a progressive nation while she is being held back by a primitive, eastern civilization. Our civilization is a western civilization and to subject us to the standards of Russia, or to the caprices and methods of their primitive officials is absurd."

Better to Germans.

It must not be inferred, however, that Poland's resentment against Russia is accompanied by a genuine sympathy with Germany. Whatever the Poles' troubles under Russian rule, they realize that German rule means the funeral of the Polish nation. We admire the great things in Germany and under German rule western Poland has been much more prosperous than it was in Russian hands. The revenues are now better off financially. It is also true that the high state of culture and that in agriculture they have even surpassed the Germans' best lands.

So perhaps from a financial point of view we would be better off under German rule, but this consideration level with her ideals for self-realization and independence, and she knows that under German rule these ideals will be buried."

Poland is therefore still turning to the allies for the realization of her independence. Though at present she is utterly helpless, financially wrecked, torn and destroyed by a war in which she emerges an independent Poland, if her resources will not have been in vain."

TYPE OF SUBMARINE FOR U. S. DISCUSSED

Radical Changes Will Be Made By Chief Naval Constructor.—Electric Vessels the Latest.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Washington, Sept. 13. Radical changes in the type of new submarine to be built for Uncle Sam's navy are being worked out by the chief naval constructor. Navy officials admitted today that some new wrinkles in submarines probably would be adopted when Congress authorizes the proposed new fleet of undersea craft which will represent the latest thought in such construction.

Special attention is being given, Secretary Daniels states, to the question of submarine construction. A corps of experts, at home and abroad, are collecting information to be assimilated in the next new U. S. submarine.

Electric propulsion is the latest in submarines, according to the present determination of the naval constructor. It is probable that electric motors may be used exclusively in the future. Naval authorities also contemplate diverting the present fleet of submarines of gas engines and substituting electric power.

One difficulty in the way of U. S. naval progress in building submarines is the "patent monopoly" which controls the patent on the type of submersible. This is the lake type. While other types with some most desirable features are being built, Secretary Daniels says the government never will adopt a type of submarine terms with patents of other submarines than the Lake variety. Negotiations are in progress, however, by which the government may be able to adopt some of the more desirable features of other patents.

The government would not be barred from using the other submarine patents in case the U. S. became interested in the rights of other countries. Secretary Daniels. He admitted that the government would not hesitate to appropriate the submarine patents and use them in building its own submarines in time of war. Compensation would be given the patentees, of course, or they could resort to the courts—but after the government had secured the patent on the submersible patents. The government, according to Secretary Daniels, would not hesitate to adopt such a policy, as a matter of defense in a time of national emergency.

Secretary Daniels hopes that Congress will eventually authorize construction by the government itself of all of its submarines. It is not being some on the Pacific coast, the only government plant at present equipped for submarine construction. These are of the oil burning type.

On the other hand, the Fore River Construction Co., of Massachusetts, has just completed ten electric submarines for one of the allies in the war.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)
Madison, Wis., Sept. 15.—More than 5,000 students are expected for the opening registration of the University of Wisconsin next week. This number will not be in evidence at first, but the school year is expected to see that goal reached.

Tuesday and Wednesday are registration days. Bernard and Chadbourne halls, women's dormitories, already have waiting lists. Medical examinations will begin Monday, and the medical department is preparing to examine 1,000 students during the first two weeks. Last year 1,688 students were examined at the rate of about 184 a day. The tests are to determine the physical and mental fitness of students to carry on academic work.

The increased tuition fees for non-resident students are not payable this year, the legislature having made the new law effective in September, 1915.

Armenia Is In the Path of Savage Battle of Destruction

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)
Washington, D. C., Sept. 15.—"Swallowed up in the maelstrom of the southern Caucasus, which is now aflame with the strife of the Turks and the Russians, the Armenian people, situated in the most treasured and sacred possession of the Armenian nation, a nation without a country and with the sword of the conqueror hovering over its head, are suffering from any people, and this possession is the monastery and cathedral of Echmiadzin, the Holy See of the Armenian Christians, the heart of the Armenian nation, and the source of that strength which has held together and guided the Armenians through centuries of persecution, warfare and massacre, and a bulletin issued today by the National Geographic Society.

"Echmiadzin is the seat of the Catholicos, or primate, of the Gregorian Armenian church, the sustaining force and the inspiration of a people whose lives and labors have been passed for a thousand years under the shadow of imminent death. Nearly a thousand years have gone by since the fall of the last definite political state of the Armenians, yet their church has held them in their national consciousness and has preserved in them their distinguishing racial and social characteristics. Almost every member of the Armenian nation belongs to the Armenian church, which counts its members by the scores of thousands. The church is more than his religion to the Armenian; it is his patriotism, his hope for survival, and the banner under which he has raised for progress, education and justice for his people.

"Mount Ararat, where Noah landed, lies just to the south of the venerable Armenian See. Here runs the Russian Turkish frontier while a few miles to the southeast lies Persia. The monastery lies about 3,000 feet above the sea, forty miles north of the capital of the Russian government in which it is situated. The Armenian Rome is surrounded by massive, grey mud walls, which enclose a cathedral and an academy. The buildings are arranged around a great quadrangle, in the center of which stands the cathedral of St. Gregory, the Illuminator, a church of more ancient beginnings than even far-famed Santa Sophia of Constantinople. It has been the bulwark of Christianity against the barbarians of Asia since 302, and though its fight has been unusually severe, long and heroic, little is known of Echmiadzin among the peoples of the West.

Throughout the years during which the Armenians have been divided between three more or less unfriendly states—Russia, Persia and the Ottoman Empire—and during the centuries of still more bitter suffering before the advent of Russia into the Caucasus, the Armenians have turned to Echmiadzin for guidance and support in all their troubles—and the history of this people generally impresses the student as being just one trouble after another. The little justification for hope. The ancient grey monastery has been the religious, political and cultural center of the Armenian world.

"The library of Echmiadzin is a treasure house of Armenian documents and literature, and among its shelves are kept some remarkable manuscripts of the gospels, dating from the ninth and tenth centuries. The monks maintain a typefoundry and are printing press, and they have accomplished great things for the education of their people and for the development of Armenian literature. The academy connected with Echmiadzin is one of the first educational institutions in the Armenian world, and many of its pupils do excellent graduate work in German and Russian universities. It was founded under Catholicos George I. in 1873, and regularly trains between 200 and 300 boys.

"The Armenian church is claimed by its adherents to be the oldest established Christian church in the world, having been founded in the first part of the third century. It is probably the most national of all churches in the world, for only Armenians belong to it. Today the 'Heart of Armenia' is in the midst of the path where savage contests are being fought, and where, according to reports, destruction has become the law and reigns supreme."

CHAPTER IX.

Fair Warning.

It was much more than a map of the metropolis that Toye carried in his able hand. He knew the right places for the right things. He gazed critically at his boots. He was not so dead sure that he had struck the only man for boots. There had been a young fellow aboard the Kaiser Fritz, quite a little bit of a military blood, who had come ashore in a pair of cloth tops that had rather unsettled Mr. Toye's mind just on that one point.

Captain Aymer had said he would like to have Toye see his club any time he was passing and cared to look in for lunch. He had said so as though he would like it a great deal, and suddenly Toye had a mind to take him at his word right now. The idea began with those boots with cloth tops, but that was not all there was to it; there was something else that had been at the back of Toye's mind all morning, and now took charge in front.

Aymer had talked some about a job in the war office that enabled him to lunch daily at the Rag; but what his job had been aboard a German steamer Toye did not know and was not the man to inquire. It was no business of his, anyway. Reference to a card, traded for his own in Southampton Water, and duly filed in his cigarette case, reminded him of the Rag's proper style and title. And there he was eventually entertained to a sound, workmanlike, rather expeditious meal. "Say, did you see the cemetery at Genoa?" suddenly inquired the visitor on their way back through the hall. A martial bust had been admired extravagantly before the question.

"Never want to see it again, or Genoa either," said Captain Aymer. "The smoking-room's this way."

"Did you say you were there two days?" Toye was cutting his cigar as though it were a corn.

"Two whole days, and we'd had a night in the Bay of Naples just before."

"Is that so? I only came aboard at Genoa. I guess I was wise," added Toye, as though he was thinking of something else. There was no sort of feeling in his voice, but he was sucking his left thumb.

"I say, you've cut yourself!"

"I guess it's nothing. Knife too sharp; please don't worry," Captain Aymer. I was going to say I only got on at Genoa, and they couldn't give me a room to myself. I had to go in with Cazalet; that's how I saw so much of him."

It was Toye's third and separate independent attempt to introduce the name and fame of Cazalet as a natural topic of conversation. Twice his host had listened with adamant politeness; this time he was enjoying quite the second-best liqueur brandy to be had at the Rag; and he leaned back in his chair.

"You were rather impressed with him, weren't you?" said Captain Aymer. "Well, frankly, I wasn't, but it may have been my fault."

"I was only going to ask you one thing about Mr. Cazalet," Toye said, and I guess I've a reason for asking, though there's no time to state it now. What did you think of him, Captain Aymer, on the whole?"

"Ah, there you have me. 'On the whole' is just the difficulty," said Aymer, answering the straight question readily enough. "I thought he was a very good chap as far as Naples, but after Genoa he was another being. I've sometimes wondered what happened in his three or four days ashore."

"Three or four, did you say?"

"And at the last moment Toye would have played Wedding Guest to Aymer's Ancient Mariner."

"Yes; you see, he knew these German boats waste a couple of days at Genoa, so he landed at Naples and did his Italy overland. Rather a good idea, I thought, especially as he said he had friends in Rome; but we never heard of 'em beforehand, and I should have let the whole thing strike me a bit sooner if I'd been Cazalet. Soon enough to take a hand-bag and a toothbrush, eh? And I don't think I should have run it quite so fine at Genoa, either. But there are rum birds in this world, and always will be!"

Toye felt one himself as he picked his way through St. James' square. If it had not been just after lunch, he would have gone straight and had a cocktail, for of course he knew the only place for them. What he did was to slue round out of the square, and to obtain for the asking, at another old haunt, on Cockspur street, the latest little time-table of continental trains. This he carried, not on foot but in a taxi, to the Savoy Hotel, where it kept him busy in his own room for the best part of another hour. But by that time Hilton Toye looked more than an hour older than on sitting down at his writing-table with pencil, paper and the little book of trains; he looked horrified, he looked distressed, and yet he looked crafty, determined and immensely alive. He proceeded, however, to take some of the life out of himself, and to add still more to his apparent age, by repairing for more inward light to a Turkish bath.

Now the only Turkish bath, according to Hilton Toye's somewhat exclusive code, was not even a hundred yards from Cazalet's hotel; and there the visitor of the morning again presented himself before the afternoon; now merely a little worn, as a man will look after losing a stone an hour on a warm afternoon, and a bit blue again about the chin, which of course looked a little deeper and stronger on that account.

Cazalet was not in; his friend would wait, and in fact waited over an hour in the little lounge. An evening paper was offered to him; he took it listlessly, scarcely looked at it at first, then tore it in his anxiety to find something he had quite forgotten—from the newspaper end. But he was waiting as stolidly as before when Cazalet arrived in tremendous spirits.

"Stop and dine!" he cried out at once.

"Sorry I can't; got to go and see somebody," said Hilton Toye.

"Then you must have a drink."

"No, I thank you," said Toye, with the decisive courtesy of a total abstainer.

"You look as if you wanted one; you don't look a bit fit," said Cazalet, most kindly.

"Nor am I, sir!" exclaimed Toye. "I guess London's no place for me in the fall. Just as well, too, I judge, since I've got to light out again straight away."

"You haven't!"

"Yes, sir, this very night. That's the worst of a business that takes you to all the capitals of Europe in turn. It takes you so long to fit around that you never know when you've got to start in again."

"Which capital is it this time?" said Cazalet. His exuberant geniality had been dashed very visibly for the moment. But already his high spirits were reasserting themselves; indeed, a cynic with an ear might have caught the note of sudden consolation in the question that Cazalet asked so briskly.

"Got to go down to Rome," said Toye, watching the effect of his words.

"But you've just come back from there!" Cazalet looked no worse than puzzled.

"No, sir, I missed Rome out; that was my mistake, and here's this situation being developing behind my back."

"What situation?"

"Oh, why, it wouldn't interest you! But I've got to go down to Rome whether I like it or not, and I don't like it any, because I don't have any friends there. And that's what I'm doing right here. I was wondering if you'd do something for me, Cazalet?"

"If I can," said Cazalet, "with pleasure." But his smiles were gone.

"I was wondering if you'd give me an introduction to those friends of yours in Rome!"

There was a little pause, and Cazalet's tongue just showed between his lips, moistening them. It was at that moment the only touch of color in his face.

"Did I tell you I'd any friends, there?"

The sound of his voice was perhaps less hoarse than puzzled. Toye made himself chuckle as he sat looking up out of somber eyes.

"Well, if you didn't," said he, "guess I must have dreamed it."

CHAPTER X.

The Week of Their Lives.

"Toye's gone back to Italy," said

Cazalet. "He says he may be away only a week. Let's make it the week of our lives!"

The scene was the little room in which Cazalet had called her parlor and the time a preposterously early hour of the following forenoon. Cazalet in her sunny snuggery rather suggested another extravagant taxicab. But Cazalet saw only his worn, excited face; and her own was not a bit less in her sheer amazement.

"Italy!" she ejaculated. "When did he go?"

"Nine o'clock last night."

"But"—she checked herself—"I amply can't understand it, that's all!"

"Why? Have you seen him since the other afternoon?"

His manner might have explained those other two remarks; now bother

ing her when it was too late to notice them; on the other hand, she was by no means sure that it did. He might simply dislike Toye, and that again might explain his extraordinary heat over the argument at Littleford. Cazalet began to feel the air some what heavily charged with explanations, either demanded or desired; they were things she hated, and she determined not to add to them if she could help it.

"I haven't set eyes on him again," she said. "But he's been seen here—in a taxi."

"Who saw him?"

"Martha—if she's not mistaken, as will appear; but that impetuous Sweep was in a merciful hurry to know something else."

"When was this, Blanche?"

"Just about dark—say seven or so. She owns it was about dark," said Blanche, though she felt ashamed of herself.

"Well, it's just possible. He left me about six; said he had to see someone, too, now I think of it. But I'd give a bit to know what he was doing, messing about down here at the last moment!"

Blanche liked this as little as anything that Cazalet had said yet, and she had said nothing that she did like this morning. But there were allowances to be made for him, she knew. And yet to strengthen her knowledge, or rather to let him confirm it for her, either by word or by his silence, she stated a certain case for him aloud.

"Poor old Sweep!" she laughed.

"It's a shame that you should have come home to be worried like this."

"I am worried," he said simply.

"I think it's just splendid, all you're doing for that poor man, but especially the way you're doing it."

"I wish to God you wouldn't say that, Blanche!"

He paid her the compliment of speaking exactly as he would have spoken to a man; or rather, she happened to be the woman to take it as a compliment.

"But I do say it, Sweep! I've heard all about it from Charlie. He rang me up last night."

"You're on the telephone, are you?"

"Everybody is in these days. Where have you lived? Oh, I forgot!"

And she laughed. Anything to lift this duet of theirs out of the minor key!

"But what does old Charlie really think of the case? That's more to the point," said Cazalet uneasily.

"Well, he seemed to fear there was no chance of bail before the adjourned hearing. But I rather gathered he was not going to be in it himself!"

"No. We decided on one of those sportsmen who love rushing in where a family lawyer like Charlie owns to looking down his nose. I've seen the chap, and primed him up about old Savage, and our find in the foundations. He says he'll make an example of Drinkwater, and Charlie says they call him the Bobby's Bugbear!"

"But surely he'll have to tell his client who's behind him?"

Blanche Looked at the Troubled Eyes Avoiding Hers.

"No. He's just the type who would have rushed in, anyhow. And it'll be time enough to put Scruton under obligations when I've got him off!"

Blanche looked at the troubled eyes avoiding hers, and thought that she had never heard of a fine thing being done so finely. This very shamefacedness appealed to her intensely, and yet last night Charlie had said that old Sweep was in such tremendous spirits about it all! Why was he so down this morning?

She only knew she could have taken his hand, but for a very good reason why she could not. She had even to guard against an equivocally sympathetic voice or manner, as she asked, "How long did they remand him for?"

"Eight days."

"Well, then, you'll know the heat or the worst today week!"

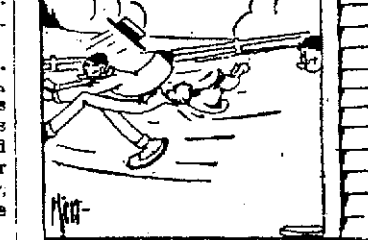

"Yes!" he said eagerly, almost himself again. "But, whichever way it goes, I'm afraid it means trouble for me, Blanche; some time or other I'll tell you why; but that's why I want this to be the week of our lives."

Dinner Stories

A story is going the rounds of the British Empire about Mr. O'Leary, father of Sergeant Michael O'Leary.

"It is recorded that when Papa O'Leary heard the details of his son's exploit, he curled a disdainful lip and said:

"An' he hit eight Dootchmen, did he? An' why shouldn't he? Sure, an' did I ev' go to the county fair without knockin' over twenty Irishmen or more, an' me with only my trawen (stick)? An' Mike had a rifle an' bayonet to help him, didn't he? Sure, an' with a rifle an' bayonet he ought to have done it, an' aisy, too."

"Gracious, man!" exclaimed the doctor when Mr. Glubbins called him in a hurry. "Your temperature is rising alarmingly near the danger point, and you—"

"And I'm worse off than I ever was before, at through the diet you prescribed."

"Impossible, Mr. Glubbins. I told you distinctly to confine yourself to such food as would be taken by a three-year-old child."

"And didn't I obey orders? I ate apple cores, dog biscuits and ends of burnt matches and scraps of peeling and everything else I could pick up while no one was looking, and here I am pretty nearly dead!"

Hastily reflecting upon the gastronomical tendencies of the average three-year-old child, the doctor told Mr. Glubbins that he had been overdoing the diet and would have to subsist on soft toast and hot water for a week.

What the Want Ad. Users Say:

A well known farmer near Avalon said the other day, "I have used the Gazette Want Ads for almost every conceivable purpose and have never yet failed to get lots of replies. I have advertised for help, for stock, farm implements for sale and various other things and in a day or so have had plenty of results."

A lady in this city said, "I was worried about what to do with an unused room. I had inquired about among my friends if they knew where I could find a roomer. One of them said to put a want ad in the Gazette. I did and had many responses. It's so easy that I will use them for other things."

A local man lost a watch some time ago. In speaking of it he said, "I had little faith that I would ever see it again but I put lost ad in the Gazette and the second day I had it back. From my own experiences I do not believe there is anything the Gazette Want Ads will not accomplish."

A certain housewife wanted to buy some new furniture that would go better with her new home. She says, "I advertised my old pieces three days in the Gazette and sold every one of them. That money came in very handy in buying the new things."

Greeted His Old Friends.

A young actor obtained permission from the celebrated satirist Piron to read to him a tragedy which was on the eve of being brought out. At every verse that was pilfered Piron took off his hat and bowed, and so frequently he had occasion to do this that the author, surprised, asked what he meant. "Oh," replied Piron, "it is only a habit I have got of saluting my old acquaintances."

WORLD'S WAR EFFECT ON AMERICAN TRADE

THE WAR HAS CREATED NEW BRANCHES OF WORK, ENLARGED OLD ONES IN THE STATES.

INDUSTRY BENEFITED

American Ingenuity Applied to Meet Problems Caused by Cutting Off of European Imports.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Washington, Sept. 15.—How every phase of American industry has been benefited by the world war was outlined in an official statement today by the Department of Commerce forecasting the effect of the conflict on the industrial future of the country.

"The blow in the face received by American industries through conditions brought about by the European war has acted as a tonic, has stimulated the nation to create new branches and enlarge the scope of existing phases of manufacture, opened the way to utilize, on a vast scale, great natural resources of the United States, and induced manufacturers and merchants to expand their markets into foreign fields with prospects of permanent results," says the statement.

"American ingenuity has been applied with success to the making of articles previously imported, and among those who have shown conspicuous ability in meeting the situation, an important place is given to Thomas A. Edison, 'America's scientific wizard,' who has had a great part in the enterprise and initiative required to build up, at a moment's notice, some of the new American manufactures required by the emergency.

"A review of the chief industries ministering particularly to the temporary needs of the belligerents across the Atlantic shows that the final outcome will be a very material addition to the manufacturing plant of the United States. Part of this plant will be simply anticipatory of the normal growth of the country's mechanical equipment; part must be idle in time of peace, but is a distinct asset in the national preparation for an adequate defense against attack; the remainder furnishes, at once products needed in the healthy expansion of the chemical industry of the country.

"Less conspicuous and spectacular, but of far greater permanent value, is the impulse given to the manufacture of American goods, with American raw materials, of a variety of articles for which we have hitherto been dependent upon foreign skill and enterprise. In a more or less uncomfortable way, we have suddenly been brought to recognize the wisdom, the folly, of shipping vast amounts of the crude material of our farms, forests, and mines, and miles across the ocean, and buying it back in a manufactured form, at a vastly enhanced price. We have likewise come to recognize the absurdity of allowing many natural products of the tropics, of South America, of the Far East, to find their way to Europe, and of paying foreign intelligence and skill to transform them into articles of daily need in our lives.

"American ingenuity, adaptation, inventive talent, scientific attainments, and general enterprise have promptly rallied to meet widespread demands, and establish on our own soil the permanent manufacture of a number of wares, some of minor, others of major importance. The return of peace will see the well rooted and able to withstand foreign competition.

Expansion of Work.

"The Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce points to the course of events that followed the cutting off by war of the textile imports from Germany and the supply of potash from the same source, with the resulting tremendous impulse given to the expansion of domestic manufacture. It also calls attention to the fact that, side by side with the increased production of artificial colors, has come the realization by dyers of textiles that the possibilities of the natural dyes have been sadly neglected during the past few decades.

"The facility and exactness with which the coal tar colors can be employed, the ease and diversity of tints and shades readily secured by their aid, have led the modern generation of dyers to disregard, in great measure, those time-honored vegetable sources of color, which still give their charm and value to the choice products of Oriental looms. The present dyestuff famine has brought these again into prominence, and so easily applied as the aniline dyes, they still have their special merits. As a result, the American works engaged in the preparation of extracts from the bark of oak and the algarobilla, from the logwood of Jamaica, from the redwood of Brazil, from the cutch of India, are providing in enormous amounts the substitutes of the brilliant, but often more fugitive, hues of the coal tar products.

"In the future, natural dyestuffs will occupy a more important position in the textile world, and a more ample recognition will be accorded to the highly perfected processes of recent years, ensuring their fitness upon the animal and vegetable fibers. At the same time, we can look forward with confidence to the evolution of a genuine American coal tar color industry.

Potash Supply.

"Of the domestic potash supply it is stated that large amounts of the compounds of this element are present in the vast beds of kelp floating on the waves of the Pacific, close to the western littoral of the country. Each year the waters of the Pacific coast are producing a crop in which potash salts possessing a normal value of more than $100,000,000 are readily available for use in agriculture and the arts. Now a dozen companies are engaged in the campaign. Not only the inexhaustible supplies in the waters of the Pacific, but also the remarkable deposits in the arid waste about Sevier Lake in California, and the valuable alumine of Utah are being rapidly transformed into standard, commercial grades. A year or two hence they may be able to fertilize our broad acres with American potash exclusively, while another year or two may see us free from dependence upon dyes of foreign make.

"The Bureau advises the business men of the United States that the present time is opportune for them to study the Latin American markets, the get in touch with the people of the countries, and thus to open the way for extensive business operations. In other countries also there are unprecedented opportunities for the extension of foreign trade, and with the indications that we are entering upon a period as a creditor nation, we are in a position, as never before, to invest our capital in industries and developments in foreign countries.

"It does not believe that the cost of production in the warring countries of Europe will be lowered as a result of the war, or that there will be a general fall in the price of the holding of new markets already gained. Experience has shown that it is apt to be higher instead of lower after the close of the war, with higher interest rates, higher wages, and higher prices in the warring countries. Surveying the whole field, it may be said that

BALANCED FARMING URGED BY EXPERTS

Professors Henry and Morrison Dwell Upon Importance of Converting Grains into Foodstuffs.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Madison, Sept. 16.—In the following bulletin, Professors W. A. Henry and F. B. Morrison of the state agricultural school, urged the importance of a well balanced system of agriculture by which grains and grasses may be converted into products for the use of mankind.

"The animals of the farm should be regarded as living factories that are continuously converting their feed into products useful to man. A fact of great economic importance is that a large part of the food they consume is of such character that humans can not directly utilize it themselves. Among the products yielded by the farm animals are not only articles of human diet, such as meat, milk and eggs, but also such materials as wool, mohair and hides, which are needed for clothing and other purposes. Another product of greater aggregate money value than any one of these is the work performed by horses and other draft animals. Altogether, the farm animals of the United States yield each year products valued at $1,000,000,000, a sum nearly as great as the value of all the crops annually harvested on our farms.

"As the population of our country becomes more dense, and a more ample and properly a smaller portion of the crops raised will be fed to animals and a larger part consumed directly by humans. This change must come with the increased demand for human food, since even high-producing animals are able to convert only a part of the food they eat into food for our consumption. Accordingly, with our increasing population, we should expect the census statistics to show that the number of animals on our farms was falling in some small degree to keep pace with the increase in farm animals compared with population is, however, surprising. While the population of the United States increased 21 per cent during the decade 1910, the number of cattle and sheep decreased, and the number of swine increased but slightly. This indicates that if animal products are to hold their present important place in the diet of our people, American farmers must more thoroughly appreciate the basic advantages of stock farming and better understanding the principles and methods which are essential to its success.

Lured by the high prices which have ruled for grain and other crops in recent years, many farmers all over the country have sold their crops for cash, rather than following the wiser plan of marketing a portion through the feeding of livestock, and thereby maintaining a balanced agriculture. Under intensive stock farming, where more or less milking by-products rich in fertilizing constituents are usually purchased and fed on the farm, the land will become richer and more productive year by year.

E. G. Hudson's Statement.

E. G. Hudson, Chambliss, Ga., writes: "Last year I bought and tried Foley Cathartic Tablets. I have tried many cathartics, but for thorough cleansing movement of the bowels without the slightest inconvenience or sickening, I believe the Foley Cathartic Tablet the best on earth. It is a perfect cathartic with no bad effects. Everybody suffers occasionally from indigestion or constipation, so Mr. Hudson's experience is worth remembering. Stout persons say these tablets relieve that 'heavy' feeling.—W. T. Sherer.

Give Reception.

Last Friday night, the Seminary faculty and old student body gave the annual reception to the incoming students for the year. The affair was held in the Seminary assembly room, which was decorated attractively for the occasion, about one hundred and fifty being present.

An impromptu program was given by the representatives present from each state in the union, twelve states being represented. The numbers were original and amusing and much merriment resulted. There were also several addresses and musical numbers, after which light refreshments were served.

The enrollment at the seminary this year is considerable in excess of 200, this being a decided increase over the registry for last year. The graduating class for this year's academic work will be the largest ever leaving the school. But few changes have been made in the curriculum of the academic work for this year.

Among the new additions to the faculty for the year are Miss Linton of Plattville, who will instruct in bookkeeping; Prof. Ezra Wheaton of Pennsylvania, who will have charge of the mathematics classes; Miss Mamie Matson from South Dakota, who will teach English.

The Commercial classes are much larger than in previous years and a night school on Monday and Wednesday and Friday nights, from 7 to 9 has been added. This will bring a decided increase to the present enrollment in these classes, as a large number are planning to avail themselves of this unusual opportunity.

Personal items.

Miss Irene Wilcox of Rockford spent the week end in this city with her aunt, Mrs. Wm. Milligan.

Dr. Woodworth of Janesville was the weekend guest of local friends.

Frank Hyne motored to Madison yesterday.
